FROM his excellency

Greetings unto the Barony on this cold winter evening.

Two years ago I had the honor of being chosen as Baron for Jararvellir. It is the tradition of Jararvellir that the term of its Baronage is three years. After this time, the standing Baronage may choose to step down, or elect to stay on (pending Their Majesty's approval).

I intend to step down as Baron at the end of my term. As most of you know, my wife is not active in the SCA. Two years ago she agreed to me becoming Baron, knowing that the term is three years. It is not fair of me to ask her to accept me being Baron for a second term.

I am giving early notice of me stepping down to give people time to think about running for the position, and to give the Kingdom Seneschal time to prepare for the succession process. The duties of the Baronage are many, but the rewards are great. Feel free to contact me if you have any questions about the office, and what it entails. I am more than happy to answer them.

More details regarding the Baronial Succession will be released in the upcoming months. Make sure to keep your eyes on the Skein, Jararvellir's email list, and the Facebook page. One final item. There have been changes to Corpora law since the last time Jararvellir had a Baronial succession. It is now possible to have two men or two women to hold the office.

Triumphator in Piscis

Robert the Stout
Baron of Jararvellir
